Successful Transitions and Effective Collaboration

1:00 – 1:35 Understanding Preschool and Kindergarten Alignment: Strategies to Improve the Kindergarten Transition

Kelly Purtell, Ph.D., The Ohio State University, Crane Center

This session will focus on understanding the impacts of preschool on children's kindergarten readiness, as well as when these impacts last, and when they do not. In particular, we will discuss the ways in which increasing alignment between preschool and kindergarten can improve children's transition to kindergarten, and potentially boost the lasting impacts of preschool.

1:35 – 2:10 Developmentally Appropriate Practice = Play

Elizabeth Sailer Agnew, Ed.D., Educational Program Specialist, Curriculum and Assessment, Office of Early Learning and School Readiness, Ohio Dept of Education
Christina Tomazinis, M.Ed., Professional Development Coordinator, Office of Early Learning and School Readiness, Ohio Dept of Education

In this session, participants will explore play as an intentional teaching strategy for early childhood birth through third grade. Specifically, playful learning experiences in kindergarten that are self-directed and guided that address the whole child help children practice emerging skills in all areas of learning. For example, children can develop large and fine motor skills, explore and ask questions about their world and interact with peers and/or adults while playing. Participants will learn about three key components of play: choice, wonder and delight, and engage in a discussion around connections to actual practice.

Heading to Kindergarten

2:10 – 2:20 Break

2:20 – 2:55 Reimagining School Readiness

Penelope Shumaker, Librarian, State Library of Ohio

Julia Shaheen, Literacy Manager, Stark County District Library

Explore research-backed resources created by the Bay Area Discovery Museum for library staff to help families prepare their 0-8 year olds for school success. Reimagining School Readiness focuses on key aspects of child development: quality adult-child interactions, social skills, math and science learning, executive functions, stress, and growth mindset. While developed for libraries, these resources are suited to all informal and formal learning environments.

2:55 – 3:30
